Nothing Inappropriate In Celebrating "Victoria Day"

To outsiders it may appear something of an anachronism that Canadians should continue to celebrate a national holiday the birthday of a Queen who died in 1901. For the fact is that however the occasion be styled—"Victoria Day", "Empire Day", "Commonwealth Day"—it firmly remains associated in the public mind of this country, thought not in Britain, with the image of Victoria. Indeed the term "Victoria Day" is still in wide use in Canada and the holiday we celebrate on Monday next is officially "Victoria Day". This may seem rather odd in consideration of the more than half century since that great sovereign was laid to rest.

Yet in the light of Canadian history there is nothing inappropriate about this commemoration. Victoria is the symbol of a great age in human history; the age in which this country took form, clothed itself with political institutions and traditions, acquired the essential characteristics of a free democracy and took irrevocably the path that led on towards that unprecedented partnership of nations known today as the Commonwealth. It is probably no exaggeration to say that Canada is a concept and a product of the Victorian era.

When Victoria was born on May 24th, 1819, Europe was in the grip of the reaction to the French Revolution while the British American provinces were under the sway of royal governors secure enough for the time in the knowledge that the colonists, after their experience with the rebellious Americans, could be relied upon—in the words of a British under-secretary—as "abhorers of republicanism". By June 20, 1837, when at five in the morning the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Lord Chamberlain arrived at Kensington to advise an 18-year-old girl that she was Queen of the British dominions, it must have appeared to many that the time was up. That very summer rebellions flared in the colonies by the St. Lawrence and though they were promptly suppressed, Robert Baldwin some twelve months later warned Lord Durham that without responsible government the provinces could be held by troops alone. Yet to many such a doctrine appeared utterly corrosive of the ties with Britain and few even of the reformers could then have imagined that Victoria's reign would see the launching of a second great American experiment in democracy on a transcontinental scale.

The Victorian age was of course distinctive for a faith in progress conducive to great projects. As more liberal counsels came to prevail in England, the Canadian colonies successfully asserted, step by step, those rights of self-government already won in the British Isles. It was of historic significance that responsible government was finally secured by the Baldwin-Lafontaine ministry because at this decisive moment appeared that recurring pattern in Canadian politics—the successful party broadly based upon a partnership of the two races. Indeed it became a tradition continuing through the era of Macdonald and Cartier down to the times of King and St. Laurent, a legacy from the Victorian age holding and fusing together a country which, as Macdonald was neither the first nor the last to recognize, is singularly hard to govern.

What Baldwin and Lafontaine achieved on the political side, Galt was largely instrumental in winning on the economic plane, the right of Canada to order her trade affairs in accordance with her own, as distinct from imperial, interests. He was also, of course, one of that distinguished company which first—with some prodding from a Britain growing anxious for the future of disunited colonies in the face of U.S. "manifest destiny"—began to think in national terms, planning for the federation which in 1867 bound together four scattered eastern provinces. But already Victorian Britain, rising to industrial heights, was reaching out for eastern trade and this impulse, reinforced by a nascent imperialism, became an important factor in the project of a transcontinental railway. With the backing of British capital, the CPR was triumphantly completed though, as was shortly apparent, steel bands could not of themselves alone guarantee the survival of the new nation of the North.

Throughout the Victorian era and into the next the issue in successive general elections, as it appeared to many, was whether in fact a nation of such vast dimensions and scanty population could hope to maintain its separate existence under pressure from the United States. As late as 1911 many Conservatives, sincerely though mistakenly, felt that this was the real question facing the country in consequence of the Laurier policy of reciprocity. Only since 1939 has Canadian material achievement really begun to justify the Laurier vision; indeed looking back over these latter years it may be questioned whether any nation, starting from such a base, has in so short a time enjoyed a comparable expansionist surge. But Laurier, the supreme optimist, whose faith is thus vindicated, was himself a child of the Victorian era, schooling himself in political science, fighting his early battles, gaining the leadership of his party and then the prime minister's office while the Queen still reigned over a far-flung, rapidly evolving empire.

In this sense it may be said that the image of Victoria has greater significance for Canada than for any country on earth, not excluding Britain. It is not at all inappropriate that a monument to the great Queen should still hold a place of honor on the lawn of the Canadian Parliament buildings or that in this country alone there should be celebrated a national holiday known as "Victoria Day".

How They Came About

The first Empire Day celebration in the British Empire took place on May 23rd, 1899 in Canada. It was not until later that a similar celebration was held in the British Isles.

The idea of having a special day set aside for Empire Day was first conceived by Mrs. Clementine Fessenden of Hamilton, Ont. On June 6, 1896, she attended a meeting of the Western Historical Society at Ancaster, just outside Hamilton, when her small granddaughter was made a member of the Society in honor of her late grandfather, Rev. E. J. Fessenden.

The little girl was so impressed by the proceedings that Mrs. Fessenden at once saw the importance of educating the children of Canada in the ideals and traditions of the British Empire.

As a first step, the educational authorities were approached and the services of the press enlisted. The Hamilton school board was the first to set aside one day a year for patriotic instruction. Shortly after this the London and Dundas school boards asked the Ontario minister of education to look into a special day for such a purpose. He wrote to all the departments of education in Canada to get their reactions to the suggestion. The response was most favorable.

The Dominion Education Association was given this information and asked to consider the matter. Consequently, when it met at Halifax in August, 1898, it fixed a day for the purpose and selected a title. The day selected was the school day immediately preceding the national holiday, Victoria Day. The first Empire Day was celebrated on May 23rd, 1899.

Meanwhile, Canada's plans for an Empire Day were attracting favorable attention in the old land. Lord Meath began the movement in Great Britain with the result that in 1904 the first Empire Day was observed in the British Isles. Since that time Empire Day has been observed regularly in the United Kingdom on May 24th, because that date is not a holiday there as it is in Canada.

The Earl of Meath extended the Empire Day movement to many parts of the Empire, from New Zealand to India, and its estimated before World War II that over ten million children as well as millions of adults took part in the yearly observance. In most of the Empire countries, the 24th of May was selected as Empire Day, as this date is not kept as a statutory holiday as has been the case in Canada for half a century. In 1906 the 24th of May was made an official public holiday in Canada to be known as "Victoria Day".

Since 1951 Empire Day and Canadian Citizenship Day have been observed as a joint ceremony. This year it was May 15th. Victoria Day observance has been changed to the Monday preceding May 24th in order to make a long holiday weekend. That is why this year we celebrate "May 24th", Queen Victoria's birthday, on Monday, May 18th.

TRY AND GET BEHIND THAT TOP HAT CURTAIN Alaskans Wonder If Dancehall Girl (Lou) Really On Way Out

By ROBERT KNOX

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (Reuters)—Among the colorful figures of early Canadian and Alaskan gold rushes was the girl who danced and drank with bearded prospectors and helped to relieve them of their gold "pokes."

Now Alaskans are watching to see whether the present-day counterpart of the dancehall girl is really on the way out.

Robert W. Service, the Yukon bard, gave the dancehall girl a name when he described one of her number in his verses as "the lady known as Lou."

Alaskans today know the dancehall girl by the far less poetic title of "B-girl." And the state's legislature has just passed a bill which, for the first time, makes the B-girl's activities illegal in Alaska.

Dawson City, scene of the original Klondike gold strike in Canada's Yukon Territory, now is a lumbering village and the dancehall long since has faded from its scene.

But in Alaska, the booming defence construction centres of Anchorage and Fairbanks, with their free-and-easy liquor laws, have made ideal settings for the modern B-girls.

In recent years Alaska probably has had easier liquor laws than any other part of the United States. When the cities of Anchorage and Fairbanks exercised some control, night life drifted to fringe areas just outside the city limits.

Under territorial laws it was relatively simple to get a liquor dispensing licence, and night clubs in these fringe areas were free to remain open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Here, in the after-midnight hours, the B-girl flourishes. She has had other factors in her favor too. One is the census statistic which shows the relatively low young, unmarried women in Alaska's population.

Another factor which has helped to raise the B-girl's bank account is the fact that the cities of Anchorage and Fairbanks are natural transport centres. The majority of bearded construction workers, their pockets stuffed with the earnings of summer months spent on jobs in isolated bush country, have to stop over at either Anchorage or Fairbanks on their way "outside."

These were the B-girl's natural targets. She offered them companionship—for a price, often high. Many of the building workers counted their bankrolls after a tour of the night spots and loomed to the sorrow that they no longer had even the price of an airline ticket home.

BILL ATTACKED
The B-girl has had her critics, many of them in the ranks of the law officers who were helpless to change the situation under territorial law. One Alaskan editor made this comment recently: "It is well known that the comely young ladies aid the nightly take by more than the price of a few extra drinks. More often than not the pleasant tete-a-tete ends in wallet-snatching, rolling, or a rash of cheque cashing. The old-timer who lost his poke to the composite dame known as Lou was many times a piker to the victim of the modern B-girl."

Now the new Alaskan state legislature has passed a bill which apparently will change all this. By a nearly unanimous vote it approved a law which specifically forbids bars to employ young women to consort with the customers to increase the sale of drinks.

But many Alaskans seem to think that the B-girl bill is worth little more than the paper it is written on. As approved, one section of it would exempt entertainers, hat-check girls and other "bona fide" employees of a bar. It would appear to take little imagination on the part of the B-girl to change herself into an "entertainer."

The B-girl was not without her defender in the legislature, despite the near-unanimous vote. One member, a long-time resident of Alaska, attacked the bill as an attempt to wipe out the last link with the colorful gold-rush days. During his impassioned plea, he also pointed out that the older female members of many of Alaska's most prominent families could be traced back to their days in the dancehalls.

It appears that in spite of legislation, the B-girl may continue to flourish for some time to come in the new state of Alaska.

Forest Industry's Startling Figures

By RICHARD GWYN
Daily Courier Special Correspondent at Ottawa

OTTAWA (Special)—The pre-eminent position of forestry in the economy of British Columbia is almost a cliché, but just how important was shown in the brief of the Forest Industry Association of B.C. to the Commons' mines, forests and waters, committee.

Here are the figures:
Total of 95 per cent of the province's land in the province is suitable mainly for forestry.
B.C. depends on forest products for some 50 cents of every dollar earned.

Net value of forest production is estimated at 40 per cent of the province's total net value of production.

In recent years some 65 per cent of all exports from British Columbia have been wood products.

Value of forest products exports from the province is nearly double that of all other products combined.

B.C. produces 60 per cent of Canada's sawn lumber; 85 per cent of all plywood and 100 per cent of all red cedar shingles.

FASTER TREES
The brief points out, however, that while B.C. has certain advantages such as climate and tree species, it works under the handicap of being a long way from most major consumer areas. Further research in other countries has produced trees capable of growing faster than those in single copy sales price, 5 cents.

SOLE RESCUER

Soviet Gyration Sensible—To Reds

By J. M. ROBERTS
NEW YORK (AP)—The Western foreign ministers at Geneva may be a bit confused by the seemingly childish devotion of the Soviet delegation to procedural matters, but it wouldn't faze such old hands as Dean Acheson, John Foster Dulles, Anthony Eden or Georges Bidault.

The new hands will just have to get accustomed to trying to extract some substantial meaning, if any, from the gyrations of the Communists.

Andrei Gromyko, hearing of President Eisenhower's assessment of the meeting so far as a Russian effort to make propaganda, might well look up in surprise and ask "Well, that's what we called it for, isn't it?"

There may be other reasons, too. It's a good guess now that one of them is to give the Russians a chance to talk their way out of Khrushchev's threat to take unilateral action designed to get the Allies out of West Berlin or, if not that, to get Communist forces in.

STRANGE WAYS
But one of the facts of the world's current life is that the Russians are fundamentally signs on the virtue of a girl. He strange to the West. If a Westerner wants to create the impression that he is trying to save the world, he's willing—and may deliberately choose—to work in sackcloth and sit in ashes. But not so with the Russians, lest someone think they are being placed in an inferior position. Trying to squeeze in the East German foreign minister was by no means the sole reason for the square table—round table argument.

Gromyko does not seem to confuse himself, just as Molotov and Vishinsky before him did not confuse themselves either, by reversals of form.

The traditional Soviet attitude toward small countries is that they should pose as the big power's dispose. Stalin and Co. never understood why the West would not settle everything by establishing spheres of influence willy nilly.

But suddenly the Reds are most solicitous about the feelings of the Poles and Czechs who on every other day of their lives are expected to dance briskly to whatever tune the Kremlin calls.

To understand the Russian curvetting at these conferences it is necessary to remember one thing. In all of its approaches to the rest of the world, Soviet Russia is like a man with evil designs on the virtue of a girl. He sets fire to her house, then puts on his fireman's helmet and lets her run the risk of perishing while he manoeuvres to be the only one to rescue her.

Recession Turning To Economic Boom

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Somewhere during the last 12 months, the Canadian economy appears to have reversed its course—from recession toward a new boom.

There is evidence now that the problem of the government and the Bank of Canada—despite continuing unemployment—is no longer what to do about the recession but how to keep the gathering boom from going under control.

One way is to clamp the lid on the money pot. And this has been done, beginning about last Oct. 1.

MONEY SUPPLY STEADY
During the 12 months preceding the last 12 months, the money supply increased by an unprecedented 12 per cent, or thereabouts, to a record of about $13,000,000,000. But since Oct. 1 it has remained pretty well unchanged.

There are no indications that either the government or the central bank plans any early action to increase the supply.

The new condition of Canada's economy is reflected in the latest increase in the Bank of Canada interest rate Thursday. In its ninth consecutive weekly rise, it reached an all-time high of 5.30 per cent compared to 5.15 a week earlier and the all-time low of 1.12—set only last Aug. 2.

The condition of the economy as a whole has lately been discussed by various people in positions of authority.

In a Toronto radio speech this week, Finance Minister Fleming said that since the beginning of the year the demand for bank loans has risen by more than $250,000,000 whereas during the same period of last year the demand was shrinking.

REFLECTS STRENGTH
"This heavy demand for commercial loans and housing mortgages is a reflection of the strength of the forces of recovery and expansion at work in the Canadian economy today," he said.

"Unfortunately, under the pressure of recovery and demand, interest rates have risen. This is part of the price we are paying for the gratifying recovery..."

In an Ottawa speech Thursday night, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said there now is a good possibility that the gross national product will rise even higher than the $34,500,000,000 forecast for this year.

"All signs," he said, "Point to 1959 being a banner year of economic achievement for Canada."

In Montreal meantime, Urie Roberge, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, issued a statement saying demand for credit has been "unusually strong" for some time now and bank loans have been increasing "steadily" and large showings since late last year.

ANTI-INFLATION DESIRE
"During the same period, however, the supply of money—the total of which is responsive to central bank monetary policy—has remained practically unchanged, reflecting the desire of the national monetary authorities to contain inflationary forces."

He said the increase in bank loans has been met by the banks selling their holdings of government bonds. But such sales could not be continued indefinitely to meet an "unabated" demand for loans.

Until some further increase in the money supply was permitted, the banks would have no alternative but to avoid any "significant" further increase in the over-all total of loans.

Recreation Setup Explained To Rutland Board Of Trade

RUTLAND—Rutland Board of Trade held the monthly supper meeting in the fire hall annex on Wednesday evening, with about 25 members in attendance.

In the absence of the president, Hugh Fitzpatrick, the chair was taken by the vice-president, Clarence Kellerman.

Following the excellent supper served by the Women's Institute, the members heard an interesting and informative talk on the activities of the recreational commission and the work of regional consultants, by Keith Maltman, the Okanagan and Similkameen recreational consultant, who carries on the work formerly undertaken by Jim Pantone.

Mr. Maltman reviewed the early efforts in the way of recreational development, first undertaken by the so-called "Pro-Ree", whose role has been taken over by the new community program branch, with much wider interests, the old "Pro-Ree" being almost exclusively engaged with calisthenics and gymnastics.

Art Gray congratulated the speaker on behalf of the board members.

MAY DAY PLANS

The meeting then devoted itself to making final plans for their part in the May day celebrations, which includes a float for the board of trade candidate for Lady of the Lake, who will be Rutland's queen for the senior

Rutland School Hardest Hit By Outbreak Of 'Flu'

The recent increase of absenteeism due to influenza in school district 23 (Kelowna) seems to be centred in the Rutland area.

C. A. Bruce, principal of Rutland Junior-Senior High School reports 92 students absent from classes Thursday out of a total of 516. Two teachers are also absent from the staff of 25.

"Average" attendance figures are being recorded at Kelowna Junior High School.

Principal F. T. Bunce told The Daily Courier this morning absentee figures are running around five per cent.

The senior high school, strangely has been marking better attendance than usual, according to principal W. J. Logie. "We are keeping our fingers crossed," he said.

Elementary principal Claude Bissell also reports no alarming absentee figures. Thursday there were only 65 missing from classes with a population of 1369.

"We are lucky to be on the fringe area," he said, but we are still hoping to keep it (the 'flu') out of the city."

THREE DISTRICTS OVER QUOTAS IN CARS CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS

Before the campaign was two weeks old, three rural areas went over the top in the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society's drive to raise $1,750.

The districts that went over the top and their quotas are: Ellison, $50; Rutland, $150, and Winfield, $100. Campaign officials reported other districts have reached the 50 per cent mark and are well on the way to their quotas.

Only the areas outside Kelowna and Glenmore are being canvassed as CARS is included in Kelowna's and Glenmore's community chest.

Rev. J. A. Petrie, last year's campaign manager now residing in Port Arthur, Ont., sent a generous contribution to the campaign.

Premier Bennett Proclaims "Forest Conservation Week"

The week beginning today and ending last Saturday (it is actually eight days) has been officially proclaimed by Premier Bennett as "Forest Conservation Week".

In his proclamation, the premier said: "No other single natural resource contributes anything approaching the $500,000,000 a year introduced into the provincial economy by the forests of British Columbia."

The premier urged everyone in the province to join with the sponsors of "Forest Conservation Week" — the Canadian Forestry Association — in observation of this annual event.

"In bringing our attention to bear on the vital role of the forests, the CPA is doing us all a great service for which they deserve the whole-hearted support of everyone," said the premier.

"Our forests," he continued, "supply the material out of which the provincial destiny is fashioned. Yet, each summer, this cornerstone of our welfare is threatened by the ravages of forest fires. Last year, many millions of dollars of public funds were spent fighting more than 4,000 of these fires that burned over 2,000,000 acres."

"Over 70,000 citizens and their families depend entirely on our great forests for their livelihood. Approximately 40 cents in every dollar earned in B.C. originates in the forest."

"These, then," the premier went on, "are our own 'facts of life' in B.C., and they lend a dramatic significance to the designation of May 16 to 23 as 'Forest Conservation Week' — a special week indeed for all British Columbians."

CNR Officials Here On Business Trip

Four Canadian National Railway officials visited Kelowna yesterday during the course of a business trip.

Ambulance Must Stop To Pay Up

The Kelowna city ambulance no longer must stop to pay toll when answering a call to the west side of the lake—but it must stop on the way back and pay for both trips.

This was made known at the executive meeting of the Kelowna board of trade Thursday when a letter from the B.C. toll bridge authority was read.

The board had requested that the ambulance pass unimpeded through the gates when on an emergency as RCMP vehicles are allowed to do.

This was refused. The ambulance must proceed westward, through the gates at five miles an hour, paying for both trips on its return.

Okanagan Forestry Camp Ideal For Living Museum

By DOROTHY GELLATLY

"A New Deal for History" was the subject of a talk given by C. P. Lyons at the annual dinner of the Okanagan Historical Society, when the speaker put forth constructive suggestions for the presentation of B.C. history and also for its preservation.

A UBC graduate in forest engineering, Mr. Lyons is with the department of recreation and conservation, Victoria, and is widely known for his deep interest in all that is of historical significance in this province, as well as for his books on B.C.

Replying to his own question as to what we are to do with the tangle B.C. history is in, Mr. Lyons pleaded for the establishment of regional museums that would interpret such areas in relation to the part each has played in the development of the province.

He added that the historical significance of a particular region should be stressed and presented to the people as living history — not as a collection of dry-as-dust bones and lifeless records.

THREE FIELDS

To achieve such ideals he proposed three fields of responsibility: federal, provincial and regional. The marking of historic sites might be done federally; the establishment of regional museums could come under provincial care—and here each locality would enter the picture.

As an instance for the Okanagan he suggested as a site the forestry camp between Summerland and Peachland, wherein to gather all that is of historical significance in the valley. With space, men and heavy machinery available, such a museum might contain an old Indian church and other buildings that have played their part in history, Indian artifacts, relics of past days; in short, all that has had a part in the history of the Okanagan.

Gathered and reconstructed in such a museum as this, a picture of life as it was in pioneer days and earlier, would be preserved for all. He deplored the existence of museums consisting of a heterogeneous collection of articles that meant little or nothing to the public.

RESTORATION PROJECT

During 1958, B.C.'s centennial year, Mr. Lyons' department was engaged in two projects: the marking of historic sites and the restoration of Barkerville—once the second largest city north of San Francisco and west of Chicago.

Mr. Lyons spent much of the summer in this former "gold capital of the world" collecting articles of historic value, restoring buildings and in a clean-up campaign.

There still is some panning of gold in the vicinity of Barkerville, and in endeavoring to preserve buildings and their contents, the tourist is offered the opportunity to pan gold and carry home a few flakes in a bottle, instead of raiding buildings and old mine shafts for souvenirs of gold-rush days.

Among historic pictures shown by Mr. Lyons, were those of Cariboo roadhouses, of which Mr. Lyons warned that soon there will be none left unless steps are taken to preserve the few remaining. Hat Creek house was one of these, also the teamster's stopping-place at Mile 108.

The McLean cabin, where the fighting McLeans, three of whom ended their short career on the gallows, were raised, also was shown by Mr. Lyons. This cabin is so sunken now that its walls rise only a few feet above the ground.

Also mentioned as worthy of preservation was an Indian dug-out canoe; the hangman's tree at Lillooet, keek-willie houses and totem poles, each in their respective regions.

Typical of the picturesque past was the scene of salmon-drying by Indians in the lower Fraser canyon—a fast-disappearing practice, Mr. Lyons' hope is that this, too, may be preserved by providing Indians with keek-willie house in which to live in that area, so that they may catch and dry salmon in the traditional manner, thus making the scene one of the chief attractions in the province.

Stonemasonry Plant May Be Set Up Here

City council has under consideration an application to purchase city-owned property in the northeast section of the city for the manufacturing of memorial stones, planter boxes and ornamental products.

Harry Schuman offered $800 for the property, which city authorities pointed out had no city services and was some distance removed from existing water, sewer and power lines.

It was estimated the cost of providing services to the property in question would be well in excess of $1,000.

Council deferred decision until a proper assessment of the costs to provide services could be reached. Mr. Schuman, when acquainted of the additional cost to provide services, indicated he may apply for an alternate site in the same general area.

SCHOOL LIGHTING

In a survey made in School District 23 (Kelowna) in 1957 only 21 per cent of the schools were found to meet the lighting standard of thirty-foot candles.

Finest Turn-Out By CARS Auxiliary

The largest number of members ever present attended the last meeting of the WA to CARS. Miss Stephens, the physiotherapist, expressed gratitude for articles donated to the clinic. These included pillows and plastic coverings for the end of plinths, little brackets with shelves for the cubicles, as well as gifts for patients.

She suggested small mirrors to be put over the brackets, and was asked to purchase them and two chairs which were also needed.

The visiting committee is very active and patients are visited regularly, and helped when possible in various ways. The ladies of the Royal Purple donated a generous sum to be used for extra comforts, they also lent a radio to a patient.

A baby doll has been purchased and the ladies are going to dress it during the summer for raffling at Christmas time. Plans were made for a party for the patients to be held on June 13 at the home of Mrs. Jennens. These parties have always been most successful and a large crowd is anticipated at this one.

The visiting committee is very active and patients are visited regularly, and helped when possible in various ways. The ladies of the Royal Purple donated a generous sum to be used for extra comforts, they also lent a radio to a patient.

A baby doll has been purchased and the ladies are going to dress it during the summer for raffling at Christmas time. Plans were made for a party for the patients to be held on June 13 at the home of Mrs. Jennens. These parties have always been most successful and a large crowd is anticipated at this one.

Height Of Living Was Electric Fan

EDMONTON (CP) — Lady Arden-Clarke spent her honeymoon in a mud hut with a thatched roof at a desolate bush station in Africa. There were bats in the caves.

"One soon gets accustomed to bats," she said in an address to the Women's Club here.

As the wife of Sir Charles Arden-Clarke, a British colonial official, she spent 19 years in Africa, four years in Borneo and the last 10 years in the African Gold Coast—now Ghana—where her husband was governor.

Her three children were "unwilling exiles" in England for 10 years. "At one time families were not allowed in Nigeria," she explained. "When they knew you were having a baby they very soon packed you home."

After the earlier days in the African mud hut they had a "palace" in Borneo, where her husband was governor and commander-in-chief of Sarawak. This was described by Lady Arden-Clarke as "a very comfortable bungalow built up on stilts."

They left Borneo in 1949. In the Gold Coast the couple lived in a castle built by the Danes during the 17th century.

Lady Arden-Clarke described her years in the tropics as a wonderful part of her life, but said the greatest thrill during her husband's career was getting an electric fan. "This seemed to be the height of luxury."

When she is not too busy as honorary corresponding secretary for the National Council of Women or honorary treasurer for the Canadian Association of Consumers, she says she takes her housekeeping seriously.

"I don't care for gadgets and I bake my cakes from scratch," she said.

TOGS FOR TODDLERS

By TRACY ADRIAN

Sugar and spice, and clothes pretty and nice, are what little girls like. And here is one diaper duet that will please both daughter and Mom.

The outfit is made of easily washable cotton in a pastel color with white stripes. The dress has a white pique collar and pique trim on the yoke. A perky, side-set bow, placed high on the bodice, gives an added touch of chic. Matching bloomer panties are plastic-lined and elasticized at the waistband.

Many Lovely Gifts At Winfield Shower

WINFIELD — Twenty-four friends were present at a shower held at the home of Mrs. K. Jardine to honor Miss Lorraine Worsfold whose marriage to Mr. Clarence Roshinsky takes place May 30 at the Catholic Church in Rutland.

Miss Janet Jardine and Mrs. A. Seltene were co-hostesses and met the bride-elect at the door and led her to a chair placed under a bow of pink and white ribbons. Her table was decorated with spring flowers.

Her bridesmaids, Miss Sharon Harden and Miss Jardine, helped the honoree unwrap the many beautifully wrapped gifts.

After the gifts were displayed, games were played and refreshments were served.

GIRLS' SCHOOL

One of Britain's leading schools for girls, Christ's Hospital at Hertford, was established in 1552.

it takes a GIANT to keep Canada on the go

There are only 5,500 new car dealers in Canada to serve more than 3,500,000 car-owning people. Yet these comparatively few dealers perform a giant selling job in moving more than 400,000 new cars a year worth well over . . . $1,100,000,000!

There are 101 daily newspapers in Canada. Every day they roll out more than 4,000,000 copies to do a herculean job of helping to sell Canada's automobiles from COAST to COAST.

Car dealers and daily newspapers have much in common. Both are upstanding local citizens vitally interested in local affairs. Back of almost every civic drive you'll find the local car dealer supporting it with all his weight. And right beside him, with equally ardent support, is his daily newspaper.

Car dealers, like others, have learned that the daily newspaper puts plenty of weight behind an advertiser's sales message, too. That's why newspapers, each year, carry the biggest share of automotive advertising. Use this giant to put the weight behind your advertising.

THE "COLLEGE TRY"

Giving it the "old college try" are these elementary school youngsters, snapped at the height of a tug-of-war in the school "Play Day" in City Park yesterday. The Red House won this event, one of the most popular contests for the kids, who really lived it up under the supervision of their teachers. One of the teachers is seen at right, urging her team on. (Courier staff photo, prints available.)

Okanagan Sun on Vacation Golfers, Dog Men Shivery

The famed Okanagan sunshine appears to be on a holiday for the long weekend.

With over 100 golfers shivering their way around the nine hole course of the Kelowna Golf and Country Club, birding enthusiasts from various parts of the province raising goose flesh out by Reisswig's Slough, and plenty of sports activities on tap for the weekend, the weather is cold and the prognostication unfavorable.

Golfers swung into the Commercial Travellers Tournament this morning with a qualifying round, and the dog handlers started into competition in the city's first dog trials.

In spite of the weather, however, an unprecedented 91 golfers staged their pre-qualifying round yesterday, with Bill Craig of Vancouver nosing out Kelowna's Ernie Butler's 38 by one point.

RECORD TURNOUT
Tournament chairman Don "Digger" Day said this morning they were flabbergasted at the turnout yesterday, which was double the usual number turning out for the pre-qualifying round. Low qualifier receives a beautiful trophy for his achievement, and the chips were down this morning as the regular qualifiers tried to beat Craig's 37.

The first 14 holes of match play started this afternoon, with the ladies working in a nine-hole match at 11 a.m. There will be 36 holes of match play for the men tomorrow and 18 holes for the finalists on Monday. The ladies play another nine-hole match Monday at 12 noon.

TOP DOGS
Some of the top dogs of the province are among those working the flats of Reisswig's Slough, with the national champion, William Sinsler's "Bulldozer," in the lists.

Only one Kelowna dog is entered this time, but the Rod and Gun club, who are sponsoring the meet, hope to have three or four dogs entered by their members in the national trials this September.

Todd Byrdon, who has entered his dog, Balmarchree Golden Scout, in the junior class, said he felt the experience would be worth-while, working against such a good field of entries.

The trials continue today and tomorrow, all day.

One woman who will be hoping for warmer weather by Monday will be Mrs. Hellevi Cooper, who plans to stage an outdoor gymnastic display in City Park Oval at 2 p.m. Monday.

Mrs. Cooper, an accomplished gymnast, has been working with girls between the ages of 8-12 this winter in the Centennial Hall, and has been staging outdoor workouts lately in mass displays, preparatory to Monday's show.

The weather has been a problem, however, and may prove to be unsuitable to stage the show.

Other sports attractions are junior baseball, women's softball and men's softball. (See box story below.)

DOUBLE HEADERS SLATED IN SO'BALL, BASEBALL

Two double headers are in store for sports fans this Sunday, with action in the Elks Stadium and Kings' Stadium scheduled at 1 and 3 p.m.

In junior baseball action, the Kelowna Chiefs host Keremeos in a twin bill, and in women's softball play, the Super-Valu Aces host Salmon Arm.

In the evening, Rutland Rovers host the Centennials, and the Blue Caps take on Club 13 at 7 p.m. in King's Stadium.

Phoenix Centre Fielder Has Perfect Day At Bat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis, May 16 (AP)—A perfect day at bat for Phoenix fielder Billy Wilson, a strapping six-foot-two 200-pounder who roams the outfield for the Blue Sox, was Manager Red Davis' No. 1 today. Wilson smashed out three home runs, a double and a single for a perfect 5-for-5 performance at the plate Friday night as the Blue Sox beat San Diego's Padres for the third straight time, 17-8.

The San Diego loss permitted the first-place Sacramento Solons to improve their lead over the second-place Padres to three and a half games. Phoenix is in third, five games off the pace.

The Solons whipped the Salt Lake City Bees, 7-3, and the Sugar Kings Indians bludgeoned the Portland Beavers, 3-0, in the opener of a scheduled doubleheader.

Wilson worked out along with the scheduled Vancouver/Seattle double.

Lefty Billy Pierce, twice a 20-game winner and one of the best lefthanders now pitching, finally is catching up with the New York Yankees.

At 32, Pierce has only a 21-30 lifetime record against the Yankees, but he gained his fifth victory in his last six decisions against them Friday, blanking New York on six singles for a 6-0 Chicago victory that gave the suddenly hot White Sox a seven-game streak.

The seven-game streak—longest in the majors this season—kept the second-place White Sox within a half-game of the American League-leading Cleveland Indians, who won 4-3 at Boston.

Baltimore clung to third with a 2-1 victory over Detroit. Kansas City edged within .003 percentage points of fourth place Washington by beating the Senators 4-2.

A BREEZE
Pierce got his second shutout of the season in a breeze, walk-out and struck out seven. He lost ing but two and striking out seven. The White Sox collected six of their nine hits off Whitey Ford (3-2).
